One of the core principles in Confucianism is the concept of 孝 (xiao), or filial piety. This virtue extends beyond respect for parents and encompasses a deep reverence for ancestors and tradition. Confucius believed that by honoring our elders, we establish a strong foundation for society and create a sense of continuity.

Thomas Jefferson: The Pursuit of Life, Liberty, and Happiness

Thomas Jefferson, the third President of the United States, was a brilliant statesman and a profound thinker. His Declaration of Independence proclaimed the inalienable rights of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. Jefferson believed that individuals possess the inherent ability to govern themselves and that a just society is founded on the principles of freedom and equality.

Jefferson was also a champion of education, recognizing its power to empower citizens and shape a nation's destiny. He emphasized the importance of reason and critical thinking, encouraging individuals to question established norms and seek knowledge throughout their lives.

Jackie Kennedy: Grace, Diplomacy, and Public Service

Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, former First Lady of the United States, was a woman of remarkable grace, intelligence, and style. Her ability to navigate the world stage with poise and elegance made her an icon of both fashion and diplomacy.

Beyond her public persona, Jackie Kennedy was a tireless advocate for children and the arts.
